“ Little did I know when I spoke with you at Terry's funeral, it would be the last time. Now you both are back united. I wish the family could get reacquainted and it didn't take a funeral to bring us all together. RIP dear sweet Peggy.

“ She's a very precious woman. I'm blessed to have known her and Suzanne' family..I always remember her saying you can't out give God..you could really see God in her..love and prayers for Mrs. Peggy Stone's family.

“ We are blessed to have a beautiful new angel to watch over us. My heart is so broken to know I want be able to share our long night talks and hear her tell me before we would say good night how much she loves me and I did the same. We had so many things we had in common that it was nothing unusual for us to talk for hours or until one of us was falling asleep. So many tears over the deep grieving days we both had over living the life of a wife with a husband with wings waiting for God to reunite us with the love of our life's. We couldn't stand to be called a widow because it sounds so final to hear the dreaded word widow. We had a lot of laughs about growing up so close. I told a friend that even with a broken heart I have to remind myself, girl you have another reason to stay strong and faithful because another angel is waiting for me to join her for Eternal Happiness and good health. Peg, my sweet angel cuz I am not going to say goodbye because it's not goodbye, it's see ya sweet angel cuz when God is ready for me to join y'all for our Great Reunion in our Heavenly Home. I am holding you and all our special memories in my heart 💕 until God calls me to join y'all for Eternal Happiness. I love ☐ you more than words can express, I'll see y'all later my sweet angel cuz.
